

Save Lives with a Simple Procedure: Advocacy

AHA's You're the Cure grassroots network works to advocate for heart-healthy and stroke-smart communities through legislative and regulatory policies in our cities, states and across the country, and we need you to join us!

Advocacy organizations draw their strength from people and depend on community organizing to bring direct pressure on decision makers. Sending an email to elected representatives, sharing posts on social media, commenting on blog posts, or attending an AHA rally or meeting – all of it helps us to amplify our message to our lawmakers and furthers our mission to build healthier lives, free of cardiovascular disease and stroke.
